The conservation, recovery, and study of threatened and endangered species and areas is a tremendous and ever increasing challenge. As we learn more about how ecosystems work, we will better understand and begin to provide the protections necessary for all life, including our own.

Global Resources for Environmental Education and Nature (GREEN) will offer unique learning experiences through the development of an Environmental Learning Center. GREEN will also provide opportunities for people of all ages to learn about and help save our environment and its endangered species. Families, businesses, educational groups, and individuals will all have an opportunity to meet in a pleasant, environmentally friendly location while giving them the opportunity to experience and learn about the environment on a personal level through living educational experiences.

GREEN will provide opportunities for visitors of all ages to understand and participate in learning about conservation, renewable energy, and on-site demonstration projects. We will develop and implement opportunities for any educational institution through on-site individualized educational programs, including accredited internships and distance learning opportunities. GREEN will provide an education center, a leadership and retreat center, and community outreach programs, a visitors' center and gift shop, and a veterinarian facility and USDA habitats for endangered species. The Environmental Learning Center will be an international destination for students and visitors, as well as an asset to the local community, and will initially employ ten to fifteen year-round, full-time employees.

GREEN will provide a USDA safe haven for several genetically valuable endangered species. No creature exists in isolation. The removal of a single species can set off a chain reaction, and long-term impacts are difficult to predict. All people have an obligation and responsibility to protect and conserve the environment, and we will give a new view of our natural world and our place within it. GREEN will be a year-round, accessible educational destination unto itself that will provide experiences with its special commitment to nature and conservation that will lift the spirit and provide memories that will endure a lifetime.
